SHEEP FOUNDATION

MISSION

To conserve, enhance, and promote Wyoming's bighorn sheep populations. Safeguarding against the decline of bighorn sheep through funding research, management, education, and conservation. We seek to conserve both bighorn sheep and our hunting heritage through youth involvement, public education, and advocacy.

WHY BIGHORN SHEEP?

Bighorn sheep are not only an iconic symbol of wild and rugged landscapes but also have a significant cultural and historical significance in Wyoming. Wild sheep have seen declines throughout North America from historical populations of up to 2 million to current population estimates of 85,000. Wyoming once had tens of thousands of bighorn sheep and we are currently only have an estimated 6,500.

WHO WE ARE

The Wyoming Wild Sheep Foundation (WY-WSF) was formed in 1983 and has a long record of actively working for the benefit of Wyoming's bighorn sheep, healthy wildlife habitats, education, and our hunting heritage. Led by an all-volunteer Board of Directors, WY-WSF annually raises thousands of dollars through the energy and efforts of conservation-minded sportsmen and women. These dollars are put back on the ground through our Grant-in-Aid program to fund bighorn sheep population management, habitat restoration, disease research and surveillance, public outreach, and youth education.

OUR VISION

Foster the conservation of healthy bighorn sheep populations, promote Wyoming's hunting heritage, engage and educate citizens in scientifically sound wildlife stewardship, and encourage youth participation to ensure future conservation.
